Expert Course on Childhood Studies and Child Rights Practice in an International Context

The International Academy for Innovative Pedagogy, Psychology and Economy gGmbH at the Free University in Berlin (INA) is launching the first edition of an Expert Course on Childhood Studies and Child Rights Practice in an International Context on April 21, 2006. The course is directed to graduate students, professionals in the child and youth sector as well as staff of public agencies. The course will be held on Fridays and Saturdays (every fortnight), in order to enable professionals to attend the course also while working.

The course aims at enabling the students to apply methodological know-how to plan and implement programs promoting children and young people as well as their social development. The course will give insights into the background, meaning and practical relevance of children's rights and will introduce current theoretical and practical knowledge for an improved understanding of the life and problems that children experience in different parts of the globalising world.

The deadline for application is January 31, 2006, for further information please visit: www.iglis.de or contact:
Prof. Dr. Manfred Liebel | Habelschwerdter Allee 45 | 14195 Berlin | Tel: +49-(0)30-838-53968 | Fax:+49-(0)30-838-54656 | e-mail: mliebel@ina-fu.org

Documentary ENMCR

On September 29, 2005 ENMCR organised the international conference “Children’s Rights in Europe- Politics, Science and Practice”. The whole conference was videotaped and we have now edited the footage to two short (14 min. and 11 min.) documentary films. The first film shows the different partners of the network and introduces the Network as a whole, with its activities and running MA courses. The second film is a summary of the panel discussion on neuralgic and critical points in implementing the UNCRC. The material gives a good overview of the event. (We would also like to refer to CRnews 12_05 which gives a detailed report on the conference).

Anybody interested in the films can contact Rebecca Budde at rebecca@eufund.de to obtain a copy.
We are also planning to offer the films as download on www.enmcr.net in the next few days. However the quality will not be as good, due to the size of the file.

ENMCR presentation at the Institute of Education, London

The next encounter of ENMCR partner's will take place at the Institute of Education in London on February 23 and 24, 2006. The network will use this opportunity to present itself publicly on February 23, at the IoE, University of London, 20 Bedford Way, London WC1H0AL, UK from 4.30pm -6.00pm in room 944.

We invite everybody who is interested in the Network to use this opportunity to get to know the core members personally and engage in fruitful discussions.

Children in the Drivers' Seat - Children studying their transport, mobility and access problems [child-led research]

Over a period of 7 months, from October 2004 to April 2005 144 Children from three rural communities in India conducted the study, which had had the following principal objectives:

- to enable children to access, obtain, and manage information appropriately, in order to empower them to become their own protagonists;
- to enable children to identify and recognize problems, access and analyse data, and use the resulting information to take control of the issues they face and, further, to develop solutions to overcome them;
- to demonstrate that children are capable of effectively participating in all democratic processes, provided that they are equipped with appropriate information and skills and that their participation in such processes can bring about structural changes in the community;

The child researchers were boys and girls in the age group of 9 to 18. About 85 percent of them were school going children and the remaining were working children. All the children who conducted the study were from low income and socially marginalised groups.
By participating in this project the children have gained a lot on both a personal and professional level. The process has equipped the children with skills and expertise in information management, including applying methods, developing appropriate, talking to other children and adults with confidence, meeting up and discussing with key stakeholders in their community, ability to negotiate and argue their point, substantiating their argument with appropriate data, making presentations, advocating their cause at various levels, including internationally and finding appropriate solutions to their problems.

Online-Course «Introduction to Human Rights Education» [education]

Teacher: Dr. Karl-Peter Fritzsche, Holder of the UNESCO Chair for Human Rights Education, University of Magdeburg
Four key questions structure the course: What basic knowledge on Human Rights is indispensable? What do we mean by human rights education? What offers on human rights education are there? How can we connect to the existing offers creatively and how can obstacles be overcome? The course is directed to all trainers and educators that practice or want to practice human rights oriented education. The course is in German. The course can be concluded with a certificate and via the Unesco chair according credit points can be obtained.
The deadline to apply for the course is: February 8, 2006

ROMANIA: Prostitution among Romanian minors in Rome [publication]
The Terre des Hommes Foundation recently published the results of a three-month research project on unaccompanied Romanian children in Rome: "An Increase in prostitution among Romanian minors in Rome". Rome today appears to contain the highest concentration of Romanian unaccompanied children in Italy. Although the number of those trafficked from Romania to Italy is a reality, the number of children from 14 to 18 years old who migrate from their country and become involved in, or fall victim to, exploitation once they are already in Italy seems increasingly high. Boys and girls are involved mainly in the sex trade, while younger children (from 11 to 13) are involved in petty crimes such as robbery and extortion.
Unilateral programmes have been designed, discussed and approved. However, in practice, the search for reliable partners in the other country and the establishment of sustainable and concrete collaboration agreements often begin only on the first day of implementation. Romanian and Italian solutions need to be combined, focus on the principle of the best interests of the child, and be based on trust between partners. The solution must be a European one.
Terre des Hommes welcome all comments and suggestions for improvement, as well as documents and research from the field.

SOUTHERN EUROPE: Need for New Child Inclusion Policies [event]
Date: 16-17 February 2006, Location: Rome, Italy
The European Foundation for Street Children World-wide (EFSCW) and the Representation of the European Commission in Italy have organised a forum on "Child Inclusion as a Challenge to the Mediterranean Partnership of the EU - the consequences of migration on children at risk in the Southern European Member States".
The Southern European countries within the exterior borders of the EU need specific attention towards child inclusive policies, which also have to take into consideration their specific migration problems. For this reason, the forum aims at raising awareness of this crucial problem as well as presenting and ensuring a mutual exchange between different stakeholders.

EASTERN EUROPE: Child protection training material [online resource] UNICEF Regional Office for CEE/CIS (Central and Eastern Europe and the Commonwealth of Independent States) and the Baltics launched an important new online Resource package on child protection in CEE/CIS last month, the first online resource package on Child Protection issues from a specific region.
The package includes reports, statistics, videos, photos, plus region- and country-specific information. It is an attempt to consolidate knowledge on the situation of child protection in the CEE/CIS region and the progress of reforms that UNICEF is concerned with, namely the child care system, juvenile justice system and the overall system of child protection.
